VICTORIA GOLD SPRING BREAK COLOURING CONTEST FOR J.V. CLARK SCHOOL

Victoria Gold Spring Break Colouring Contest for J.V. Clark School winners Akaisha, Avery and Tanner with their winning entries and prizes.

Throughout February, Victoria Gold's Community Liaison worked with the First Nation of Na-Cho Nyak Dun and Mayo's J.V. Clark School to create a colouring contest to help engage the school's students and their families over the school Spring Break.

The contest was open to all school students up to Grade 7 and 18 imaginative, colourful entries were received once school re-commenced after the break.

Adapted from Mining Matters; a national charitable organization which provides resources for young people to develop their knowledge and awareness of Earth sciences, responsible mining and their roles in society, Victoria Gold's unique contest artwork focused on the company's commitment to reclamation and revegetation at the Eagle Gold Mine site.

The contest winners, selected by a committee of representatives from the First Nation, the school and the company are:

- Akaisha – Kindergarten
- Avery – Grade 3
- Tanner – Grade 4

All contest entrants will receive a prize from Victoria Gold in recognition of their participation and creativity.

"The team at Victoria Gold is delighted by the originality demonstrated by all the students who participated in this, our first colouring contest for J.V. Clark School," says Victoria Gold President & CEO John McConnell. "This fun activity was designed to encourage students to keep engaged during Spring Break and to illustrate our commitment to the environment and the community."
